

205 graduate from Big Sandy, Pasadena campuses

Texas confers first degrees since 1977

By Jeff Zhorne
BIG SANDY — Associate of arts and associate of science degrees were presented to 87 Ambassador College students here May 11 in the field house auditorium, according to Larry Salyer, dean of students.

The last Big Sandy commencement exercises took place May 12, 1977, when bachelor of arts degrees were conferred on 111 graduates. After four years of being consolidated with Pasadena, the Texas campus was reopened as a two-year institution by Chancellor Herbert W. Armstrong in 1981. (See WN, March 16, 1981.)

With Mr. Armstrong in Europe, evangelist Herman L. Hoeh delivered the commencement address, "The Social Problems Underlying the Crisis in Education," to the graduates, faculty members and guests.

Before Dr. Hoeh's address, Ralph Lucia, student body president, gave an overview of the Big Sandy campus, pointing to the importance of the new program where all students will be accepted for two years. (See "Updates," WN, March 7.)

The graduates marched in procession to "Pomp and Circumstance" played by the Denver, Colo., church band, under the direction of Norm Myers.

The Ambassador Chorale, directed by Roger Bryant, performed "Blow Ye the Trumpet" and "Hallelujah" from Handel's Messiah.

In his address Dr. Hoeh explained the "missing focus" of the National Commission on Excellence in Education that released its findings early this month after an 18-month study of public education.

The commission suggests, among other things, a stiffer curriculum, more homework assignments, tougher textbooks, higher teacher salaries and less teacher discipline.

"But they have failed to come to grips with the fact that these problems are the result, not the cause," said Dr. Hoeh. The cause, he said, lies in the home.

Dr. Hoeh added that the bulk of problems in secular education go back to a lack of discipline and responsibility in the home.

"The breakdown of the family has left children without proper supervision," he continued. Parents have abandoned their responsibility to maintain "total awareness" in child rearing, "that is, the child's spiritual, emotional, physical and educational needs."

Faculty member Richard F. Ames, who spent the past school year in Big Sandy, presented the Watson Wise Incentive Award to freshman Roxanne Campau of Zeeland, Mich. The award is given to the student "deemed most worthy in exemplifying the qualities of industry, scholarship and other activities within the area of Christian citizenship."

Diplomas were handed out by Deputy Chancellor Leslie L. McCullough to the Class of 1983. According to the Registrar's Office, those who received associate of arts and associate of science degrees are:

With highest distinction (at least 3.80): Patricia Eileen Briggs, Paul E. Jarboe, William L. Johnson, Kerri J. Miles, Frank Sherman Parsons III, Raymond Leonard Rex and Linda Arlene Snuffer.

With high distinction (at least 3.50): John E. Bearse, Cleta Lea Devine, Jean Marie Dusek, Cara Lynne Edwards, Donald R. Hornsby, Janet L. ### Pasadena conducts 33rd commencement

By Michael A. Snyder
PASADENA — "We have to make our young people aware that this world will not solve its problems, but the God who made it will," declared Herman L. Hoeh, evangelist and Plain Truth editor, to 118 graduating seniors and more than 1,000 guests at Pasadena Ambassador College's 33rd commencement exercises here May 13.

The Plain Truth editor was asked by Chancellor Herbert W. Armstrong to give the main address, as Mr. Armstrong was scheduled to be in Europe during both the May 11 commencement exercises in Big Sandy and the Pasadena commencement.

Under overcast skies shortly after 4 p.m. Pacific Daylight Time (PDT), the 118 seniors marched in procession down to the lower gardens, the traditional site of Pasadena graduations. The seniors, men wearing dark suits and the women wearing white formal gowns and carrying red cut roses, marched to "Pomp and Circumstance," performed by the Ambassador College Band.

Evangelist Raymond F. McNair, deputy chancellor of the Pasadena campus, gave the invocation and welcomed the degree candidates and guests.

Outgoing student body president Gary R. Richards encouraged the degree candidates to employ teamwork throughout their lives. He said that teamwork was "one element that has been neglected in our society."

The Ambassador Chorale, directed by John D. Schroeder, performed "The Road Not Taken," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Dr. Hoeh followed with his address entitled "The Social Problems Underlying the Crisis in Education."

Dr. Hoeh traced the origins of modern problems in education from the period after World War II. "As you would generally assume," he said, "all of the [education] panels . . . treat, in general, the effects and not the causes" of problems in education.

"They [the problems] really did not arise in our school system," he continued, "they arose before our young people entered the system."

Dr. Hoeh pointed out that "the home is the area where many of the problems should have been resolved that educators are trying to resolve. Education, of course, is a lifelong process — and we should have realized that it begins before we enter school."

After defining the needs of right child rearing to produce strong character in young people, Dr. Hoeh said: "If Mr. Armstrong were here, he would want all of you to realize, however, that even though we know all this, and even if we did everything right henceforth — we will not solve the world's problems."

To solve the problems of education, it will need God's "intervention in world affairs to set this (See PASADENA, page 6)

Texan, 14, wins junior division of YOU essay writing contest

PASADENA — Vicki Kathleen Fuesel, 14, captured first place in the junior division of the Youth Opportunities United (YOU) essay contest with her essay "The Keys to a Happy Family," announced Kevin Dean, YOU director, May 4.

Second place went to Elana Sargent, 16, of San Antonio, Tex., and third place was awarded to David Logan, 15, of Sepulveda, Calif.

Vicki lives in Eola, Tex., and attends the San Antonio church with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Reinhold V. Fuesel Jr.

"Overall, the YOU staff and those assisting with the contest were very impressed with the quality and diversity of approaches in the essays," said Jeb Egbert, YOU business manager and coordinator for the contest.

Mr. Egbert also commented that the contest's family theme was chosen because "that is the No. 1 theme of YOU — promoting family unity and strengthening relationships within the family unit."

The winners were chosen from more than 450 entries in the junior division. According to Mr. Egbert, the YOU staff first read every essay to begin narrowing down the choices. "After the YOU selection committee read all of the essays, those essays that survived the first round were sent to English teachers on the Imperial Schools faculty," he said.

The English teachers narrowed the field down to 15, and those were forwarded to the Editorial Services Department for final judging.

Once in Editorial Services, the essays were photocopied with the individual names and addresses blanked out.

"We gave the 15 essays to Plain Truth, Good News, Youth 83 and Worldwide News editors and editorial assistants," explained Dexter Faulkner, managing editor of the Work's publications. "Since the names were blanked out, the editors had no idea who wrote the essays while they were judging them."

Mr. Egbert said that the essay contest "reveals a different aspect of the young people in God's Church. The essay contest also offers a totally different way to participate in YOU, and helps develop and show character in teens outside the YOU athletic program."

He also said that judging for the senior division of the essay contest has already begun, with more than 600 entries now in the initial judging phase.

Vicki's first-place essay begins on page 3 of this issue. The senior division winner's essay, when selected, is also scheduled to be printed in (See CONTEST, page 5)

The fire rages while the U.S. Congress sleeps

PASADENA — The United States is poised on the brink of disaster close to home.

April 28, President Ronald Reagan took the extraordinary step of convening a joint session of Congress — during prime television air time — to tell the nation's lawmakers and the American public at large that the national security of all the Americas is at stake in the mounting chaos in Central America. Earlier in the day he remarked that "there's a fire started and burning in America's front yard."

Central America, Mr. Reagan told Congress, "is much closer to the United States than many of the world trouble spots that concern us... El Salvador is nearer to Texas than Texas is to Massachusetts. Nicaragua is just as close to Miami, San Antonio, San Diego and Tucson as those cities are to Washington where we are gathered tonight."

The goal of the Communist-backed guerrilla movements in Central America, continued the President, "is as simple as it is sinister — to destabilize the entire region from the Panama Canal to Mexico. If you doubt me on this point, just consider what Cayetano Carpio, the now-deceased Salvadoran guerrilla leader, said earlier this month. Carpio said that after El Salvador falls, El Salvador and Nicaragua would be

'arm-in-arm and struggling for the total liberation of Central America...'

"Must we sit by?" asked Mr. Reagan, "while independent nations of this hemisphere are integrated into the most aggressive empire the modern world has seen? Must we wait while Central Americans are driven from their homes... creating another tragic human exodus?"

The President then spoke of the grave implications of a Communist sweep in Central America upon the entire U.S. position in the world.

"If Central America were to fall, what would the consequences be for our position in Asia and Europe, and for alliances such as NATO? If the United States cannot respond to a threat near our own borders, why should Europeans or Asians believe we are seriously concerned about threats to them?... Our credibility would collapse, our alliances would crumble and the safety of our homeland would be put at jeopardy."

Congress disagrees

Despite the stark realities revealed by President Reagan, many of his congressional critics remained unconvinced. They fear he is trying to lead them into the sinkhole of another Vietnam, with endless U.S. involvement.

The critics almost universally opt for pressuring the embattled democratically elected Salvadoran government to work out a negotiated settlement with the rebels — even though most of them should realize that Marxists never share power for long, Nicaragua being the latest case in point.

Nevertheless, Congress now has the upper hand in foreign policy.

could not obscure the deeper reality that the President stood before Congress, hat in hand, begging for the right to be able to direct his own foreign policy."

WORLDWATCH

By Gene H. Hogberg

The office of the President of the United States — once the most powerful position in the world — has been chopped and quartered since the Vietnam-Watergate era.

According to James Ceaser, an associate professor of government at the University of Virginia: "A President today must speak loudly because he carries a small stick. Appearance Reagan's dramatic appearance before Congress to appeal for support for his Central American policy had all the trappings of power: ceremony, applause and media attention. But all this pomp and the speech. On that date majority members on the House Intelligence Committee pushed through a measure that would cut off covert aid for anti-Sandinista forces in Nicaragua.

The Reagan administration supports such groups inside Nicaragua primarily in an attempt to interdict arms moving out of Nicaragua into El Salvador.

Even though the legislation faces an uphill battle in the Republican-controlled Senate, and possible presidential veto, it flashes an initial green light to Moscow, Havana and Managua, the capital of Nicaragua, that "all systems are go" for the military overthrow of the entire isthmus.

It says, in effect, that Marxist Nicaragua (but not pro-Western El Salvador) is now a protected sanctuary of the U.S. Congress.

At the same time, the measure approved by the committee authorized $80 million for overt funding to threatened Central American nations to assist them in capturing arms shipments once they pour in from Nicaragua, Cuba or other nations.

This means that the U.S. Congress, claiming it wants to avert another Vietnam, is ironically doing that very thing — committing the United States to fighting a war Vietnam-style.

Why? Because during the Southeast Asian conflict, the United States placed the main aggressor, North Vietnam, off limits for the most part. It permitted weapons to flow from the Soviet Union into the north, virtually unimpeded, then tried to bomb them from the air as they moved down the jungle-shrouded tributaries of the Ho Chi Minh trail network.

In this war, the main weapons-forwarders, Cuba and Nicaragua, are also placed off limits.

The whole concept of letting the arms in and then trying to hunt them down along the way is ridiculous — much like snatching bullets in the air after they're fired from a machine gun.

Vietnam's consequences

The scene is set, to use sequential movie parlance, for Vietnam II.

In a May 2 Wall Street Journal article entitled "Don't Let El Salvador Become Another Vietnam," former U.S. President Richard M. Nixon warned: "There are chilling parallels between what is happening in El Salvador and what happened in Vietnam... Before making that decision [to cut aid to El Salvador] Congress should remind itself of what happened in Vietnam."

Just one more thing

By Dexter H. Faulkner

'Acting' like a Christian

Centuries ago the prophet Isaiah condemned insincerity (Isaiah 1:10-15), and in one of His most stinging speeches Christ criticized the religious leaders of His day for their hypocrisy (Matthew 23).

When Christ preached His sermon on the mount, there wasn't a Pharisee within range who didn't want Him dead. They hated Him because they pretended to be pious and devout, but in reality were self-centered, dishonest, arrogant phonies.

What about us as members of God's Church today, could we be guilty of the same sins of the Pharisees?

The apostle Paul's pen flowed with heated ink when he told Timothy that hypocrisy would characterize the latter days of this society (1 Timothy 4:1-2).

The word phony implies something bad, and most of us would like to apply it to someone else — or to another church.

When students and other people criticize us for being insincere, we ignore it or pass it off as the irresponsible prattle of idealistic youths. It's uncomfortable when we are called hypocrites, but God placed it in His Word as a reminder to look at ourselves.

Remember that Christ reserved His strongest and longest sermon for hypocrites, glory hogs, legalists — present-day Pharisees. It's a checklist for us — are we on target or are we doing as the Pharisees? We need to test ourselves.

Read Matthew 6:1. How do you score? "Beware of practicing your righteousness before men to be noticed by them..." (New American Standard Bible).

In other words, stop showing off! Stop looking down your nose at others who don't fill your preconceived mold. (This might be the way they dress or their eating habits.)

Stop calling attention to your righteousness. Stop lusting to be noticed. (Big briefcases — just like the ministers. Or volunteering for everything, yet neglecting your family.)

Matthew 6:2 talks about when you give alms or when you are involved in acts of charity assisting others in need. Christ says don't "sound a trumpet" when you do this. Keep it quiet, even secret (verse 4). Stay out of the picture, remain anonymous.

Matthew 6:4 talks about what to do when you pray. Pharisees love syrupy words and sugar-cruled platitudes spoken for all to hear.

Jesus says, Don't show off when you talk with the Father. Whether in private or at services our prayers need to be simple, honest and sincere, not phony or put on.

Matthew 6:16 talks about what to do when you fast. (Note, not if you fast.) Now that's the time the show-off really hits his or her stride. He or she works overtime trying to appear humble and sad, hoping to look hungry and exhausted.

This chapter and chapter 23 are looking glasses for all of us — take time to reread and study them carefully.

Let's face it. Christ spoke with jabbing, harsh words concerning the Pharisees. No less than eight times in Matthew 23, He pronounced "Woe to you" — unfortunately, Pharisees are terribly hard of listening.

At one time or another we are all guilty of hypocrisy. Some come to church to hear the words, have a big smile, pat the minister on the back, then go home and forget the words of the sermon.

Some only come for Passover service. We do not see them the rest of the year. Reminds me of worldly churches and Easter services. Same applies to Holy Days, you rarely see some at any other time.

Let's look at Jeremiah 7:8. Hypocrisy is using religion as a cloak for evil. "Behold, you trust in lying words that cannot profit. Will you steal, murder, commit adultery, swear falsely, burn incense to Baal, and walk after other gods whom you do not know, and then come and stand before Me in this house which is called by My name, and say, 'We are delivered to do all these abominations?'" (Jeremiah 7:8-10, Revised Authorized Version).

Do we say we're righteous, yet commit sins?

Do we lie — shading truth, white and black lies, misrepresentation? Telling people what we think they want to hear?

Do we cheat? Do we repay debts, cheat on tithes or taxes, pilfer from our employer?

Do we murder? If we even hate someone we're murderers.

Do we commit adultery? Lust in your heart is adultery.

Do we smoke secretly? Drink excessively? Break the Sabbath — just going to church doesn't mean that you observe the Sabbath.

Do we use cosmetics secretly? Taking it off for church while just using a "small amount" while on the job? We're playing the actor, trying to change outward appearance. The worst used for hypocrite in the original Greek of the New Testament meant actor.

God notices it all.

Whether we're pretending to other brethren or to the public, we're playing the hypocrite.

We're supposed to be coming out of sin, not being overcome by sin.

Just one more thing... well, maybe two.

First, if you tend toward being a little hypocritical in any form, stop it now!

Second, practice sincerity daily in everything you do. Mean what you say. Flattery is from the teeth out, and sincerity is from the heart out.

We also need to be honest with ourselves, considering our own strengths and weaknesses. We need to be honest before God, recognizing that He knows all about us anyhow, but expects us to confess our sins to Him (1 John 1:9) and to seek His help through prayer and counsel with God's ministers.

Hypocrisy is an abomination to God; don't let it encompass you or yours. Live and practice 1 Peter 2:1-2.

European Diary

By John Ross Schroeder

Britain's day of decision

BOREHAMWOOD, England — Election nerves hit Great Britain with a bang. Other news is all but forgotten. As the May 10 Daily Mail expressed it: "The election trumpet... heralds a day of decision for us all."

John Ross Schroeder is The Plain Truth's British regional editor and senior writer at the regional office in Borehamwood, England.

Two paths are before the British people. One is to continue down the road Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has taken them with all its pluses and problems. The path offered by the Labor Party is radically different in character.

Conservatives are painting the Labor manifesto as the road to doomsday. The pound would collapse; foreign investment would dry up; money would be printed and borrowed; inflation would return with a vengeance; Britain would leave the European Economic Community; and unilateral disarmament would surely come, leaving Britain virtually defenseless.

Charges and countercharges will continue right up to election day — June 9. It is merciful that the British electoral process is short by comparison to its American counterpart. Some campaigns are as short as three weeks. The last one lasted 35 days; this one will end in a month's time.

Election fever

Once the prime minister has announced the election date, things happen in a hurry. Parliament is dissolved in short order to enable members (MPs) to rush back to their constituencies in quest of reelection. Election fever reigns. The country thinks of little else.

Thursday, June 9, the polling booths open, the votes will be counted and the next morning Brit-

PT promotion literature receives 'special recognition' at banquet

By Terry Warren
PASADENA — Three of the Work's advertising-promotion pieces received special recognition from the Western Publications Association (WPA) at the 1983 Maggie Awards Banquet April 21 in Anaheim, Calif.

Terry Warren is manager of the design graphics area of Publishing Services in Pasadena.

Plain Truth promotion pieces were selected as three out of five finalists for "Best Subscription Promotion Program of the Year."

They were the Plain Truth newsstand counter display, the Plain Truth newspaper insert that appeared in New York City and Boston, Mass., newspapers and a full-color brochure used to promote the Plain Truth newsstand program to retail managers.

The Maggie Awards are annually presented to publishers whose magazines or promotion pieces represent the highest standards of editorial and design excellence. According to Ray Wright, director of the Church's Publishing Services, "Forty-seven categories were represented in the final competition, which featured entries from such prestigious publications as Arizona Highways, Oceans, Honolulu, Learning, California Business, Chevron U.S.A. and Westways."

Mr. Wright said: "The Western Publications Association, with its 250 members, is the largest publishing association in the world. It's an honor for our work to be chosen as among the finest promotion programs of the past year."

"Although we did not receive a Maggie Award [for first place among the finalists] in our category, we were one of only three publishers to be honored with three final entries in the same category."

The counter displays were designed by Sharon Peters and Bill Wilson. The newspaper inserts and the newsstand brochure were designed by Mike Riley. All three pieces were written by Terry Warren and produced by the design graphics group within Publishing Services. All promotional pieces were reviewed, edited and approved by Pastor General Herbert W. Armstrong.

According to a WPA spokesperson, "This year the WPA had a record number of entries for the 1983 Maggie Award."

More than 800 representatives of leading publishing companies attended the awards banquet in the Grand Ballroom of the Anaheim Marriott Hotel.

Guyana minister recounts trip

By Paul Krautmann
GEORGETOWN, Guyana — Paramakatoi, 200 miles (320 kilometers) deep in the interior of Guyana, South America, high in the Pakaraima Mountains is home of the Patamona tribe of Amerindians and the home of Jimmy and Rachel James, members of God's Church.

I had a memorable visit with them in November. After an hour-long flight from the coast in a 19-seat Twin Otter aircraft to the top of Kaieteur Falls (741 feet or 222.3 meters), about five times higher than Niagara Falls in North America, we flew past the towering Kawa Mountain, over the dense green carpet of jungle, and landed at Paramakatoi.

Paul Krautmann pastors the Georgetown, Guyana, church.

Almost the whole village was there to greet the airplane. There is only one flight every two weeks, if the airstrip is dry enough for aircraft to land.

Jimmy is part Cherokee Indian and Scotch-Irish through his father, and part Macushi Indian through his mother. Rachel is of pure Patamona Indian stock.

The life of an Amerindian in this part of the world is hard. There is no means of transportation except by foot. Everything must be carried in a backpack, or wairishi in the Patamona language. One-hundred-pound loads are routinely carried for miles in the scorching sun up and down the Pakaraima mountains, by the women as well as the men.

Having been born and reared in England, I thought I knew all there is to know about walking up and down hills. But I was in for a shock when I, against Jimmy's advice, insisted on accompanying them to their farm a few miles away at the foot of the mountain on which Paramakatoi is situated.

We set off. Everything seemed fine — it was downhill all the way, with beautiful scenery all around. When we arrived at the farm, which is simply a clearing in the forest, Rachel and Jimmy began digging up giant yams with their cutlasses (machetes); a long and arduous task.

It took a couple of hours, clambering up and down the slopes, searching and digging, to collect the yams. Then they were loaded into the wairishis, and we began the ascent back to Paramakatoi.

After an hour or so of climbing through the steep forested slopes, I was ready to call it a day, but Jimmy and Rachel kept plodding along.

Every time we reached a turn in the track, I thought, Good, not far to

As I pray for the brethren you spoke of, I try to picture them, their faces, their homes, their trials, and I wish I could reach out and touch them and say, "It won't be long now." Thanks so much for the article ["Just One More Thing," April 5]. "Dust Guns, Roadblocks" in the last WN. It really gives us an insight, as to what the ministers and brethren there are facing, so we can pray for them.

Youth shows how to use 'keys to a happy family'

By Vicki Fuessel

You might have at some time heard the saying, "a family that works, plays and prays together, stays together." If you really think about it, this phrase is very true and applies to those families that have happy, energetic, fun-filled and rewarding lives.

Vicki Fuessel, 14, of Eola, Tex., captured first place in the junior division of the Youth Opportunities United (YOU) essay contest with this essay.

Seeing a family that works together to get jobs done is something really special. Family responsibilities such as yard and field work, housecleaning and miscellaneous jobs can be done by the whole family and turn out to be happy times. Many times a job that generally might be boring, could turn out to be something very enjoyable if all of the family will join in and make it so.

In my family there has always been work to do. My parents have always lived on a farm and everyone participates in the work. From the time the crops are planted in the spring to the time they are harvested in the autumn, there are many long days of hard labor.

During the summer, we work especially hard to rid the crops of weeds and to cultivate the soil. This (See YOUTH, page 5) go now, only to look up and find many more turns up ahead. In the end, willpower triumphed over fatigue, and we reached the top, and then on back to Paramakatoi.

However, it was no great triumph for me — all I was carrying were a camera and two sticks of sugarcane. Jimmy and Rachel carried the loaded wairishis all the way to the top. I tried, but gave up — it was difficult enough to walk with a wairishi on level ground, let alone a steep mountain track.

While we were climbing I thought of Galatians 6:5: "Every man shall bear his own burden" (King James Version). The Greek word for burden refers to a load or backpack to be carried by one person.

I realized that we all have to bear our own responsibility toward God — no one else can do it for us.

We have to study. We have to pray. We have to fast. We have to keep all of God's commandments. (See GUYANA, page 11)

AMBASSADOR ACTIVITIES

FACULTY VISIT CAMPUSES IN EXCHANGE PROGRAM

PASADENA — Evangelists Leslie McCullough, Big Sandy deputy chancellor; and Roderick C. Meredith, Pasadena professor of theology; participated in the Ambassador College faculty exchange program in April.

Mr. McCullough said: "The program is designed primarily to maintain communication between the two campuses. . . . It also gives the students exposure to the faculty of the different campuses."

Mr. McCullough visited Pasadena April 17 to 22. While here he spoke to the student body at an assembly and taught the life and teachings of Jesus and epistles of Paul classes. Mr. McCullough also met with Pasadena administrators, discussing acceptance of new students for the coming year.

Dr. Meredith visited Big Sandy April 14 to April 24. Dr. Meredith said, "The program brings the campuses closer together by having the very teachers from each campus visit."

While in Texas, Dr. Meredith gave two Bible studies, a sermon in Big Sandy, a sermon in Tyler, Tex., and taught the epistles of Paul, life and teachings and first and second year speech classes.

During this school year, evangelist Raymond F. McNair, Pasadena deputy chancellor; Greg Albrecht, Pasadena dean of students; and Larry Salyer, Big Sandy dean of students, also participated in the program.

CHORALE PERFORMS FIDDLER ON THE ROOF

PASADENA — The Pasadena Ambassador College Chorale and Chamber Orchestra performed the annual spring concert April 27 in the Ambassador Auditorium. The chorale sang selections of German classical music and songs from the musical Fiddler on the Roof.

Pastor General Herbert W. Armstrong attended the concert, which included both spiritual and secular selections. Some of the pieces for the first half were: "Lo Speziale," "Gute Nacht," "Lift Thine Eyes" and "Standchen." Faculty members John Beaver and Gerald Bieritz sang a vocal duet. Senior John Sullivan narrated the first half of the concert.

John Schroeder, director of the chorale, said: "We wanted to feature the women's and men's sections of the chorale separately, and these particular pieces lent themselves well to this."

The second half of the concert featured 12 choreographed scenes from Fiddler on the Roof. Mr. Schroeder said: "There are tremendous parallels between the lives of these Russian Jews with the lives of true Christians. Church members can relate to many of the songs from the musical." To explain the various scenes, junior Eli Chiprout and Edit Platau, a member of the Pasadena church, narrated.

Mr. Schroeder said, "Some of the scenes were brilliantly staged, since the Auditorium is exceptional for producing special effects." The special effects included fog on the stage, lighting requirements and a sunset.

Mr. Schroeder explained that in addition to the chorale and orchestra, special effort was required for choreography, lighting, sound and costuming.

consistently well. Of course, the "Hallelujah" chorus is everybody's favorite."

Mr. Bryant added: "The three pieces, "Surely He Hath Borne Our Grievs," "With His Stripes We are Healed" and "All We Like Sheep Have Gone Astray" were particularly moving, not only from the text, but from the music as well."

Accompanying the 75-member chorale was a 26-member orchestra with Kathryn Ames, wife of Big Sandy faculty member Richard Ames, as concertmistress.

The orchestra was composed of Ambassador students, members of the East Texas Symphony and the Longview, Tex., Symphony and Carole Deptula, a member of the Lufkin, Tex., church. Ruth Walter, Big Sandy faculty member, accompanied on harpsichord.

Youth

involves getting up early in the morning and working until late at night. Of course, the work itself is not all that enjoyable, but our labor has paid off. Almost every year, God has blessed us with a wonderful crop and also the opportunity for our family to grow closer together.

Many times I find myself comparing my family to other families who do little work together. I realize that because many families do not have the opportunity to work together, their life is not as fulfilled and their families are not as close.

I also remember very clearly many of the times when my family has played together. All of our family attends church services and some area activities. The Feast of Tabernacles has always been the highlight of the year for our family. Every Feast our family does at least one very special activity together — maybe dining at an elaborate restaurant or riding a riverboat.

I remember riding the "Ducks" at Wisconsin Dells, attending the LaComedia Dinner Theatre at Dayton, seeing the breathtakingly beautiful falls at Niagara Falls and taking the Chesapeake Bay Harbor Tour at Norfolk.

The whole family also shares the fun of opening and playing with gifts they received at the Feast. Even though I was only 4 years old, I can still vividly remember how excited I was at Wisconsin Dells when I received my first Feast doll, and how when my nephew received a video game at the Lake of the Ozarks and we stayed up late playing it.

Seeing friends we haven't seen for a long time and doing things with them is also very exciting.

The Feast of Tabernacles is not the only time for fun though. Sharing recreational activities together such as attending socials, going to movies and dances, or flying kites at the park together can really help to draw families closer together.

A lot of times on Saturday night after sunset our family plays an exciting game of cards or dominoes and then pops up some popcorn. Also, having friends over is really a great way to fellowship, too.

One more thing our family does that is especially important is family prayer. Our day is opened early by my mother's delicious breakfasts together. Our family always eats together — the only exceptions being because of an illness or if a family member spends the night at a friend's home. Every one of our meals is led by a prayer to God to thank Him for our food.

After we finish eating, my father reads to us from The Plain Truth, The Good News, Youth 82, The Worldwide News or the Bible. Then before we all go our separate ways we kneel and pray to God to ask Him for safety throughout the day. You get a very comforting feeling knowing that your day will be started by family Bible study and prayer.

All of this has definitely paid off for our family. My parents came into God's Church 29 years ago and are still actively involved. There are five children in our family, and all of us still attend the Worldwide Church of God. The three oldest have all graduated from Ambassador College at Pasadena, have been baptized for a number of years and have mates in God's church. My oldest brother is a minister, and my sister is a minister's wife.

Although our family is now separated by many miles, we still look forward to the times when we can get together. In addition to vacation time and visits back to the farm, the Feast of Tabernacles is still the greatest highlight of the year for our family. We try to attend the same Feast sites if at all possible.

Even though we do not live as close to each other as we would like to, we still follow these three basic principles. We work together to get some of the harder jobs done, we play together by attending recreational activities together, and we start each day with fervent Bible study and prayer before we each separate for the day.

Because my parents have tried to follow these three basic principles, applied God's truth to their lives and set examples for us to follow, our family has truly stayed together.

Firstfruits

By Vivian Pettijohn

"Daddy," Chris announced at the dinner table, "today I studied the words of that proverb you wanted Debbie and me to learn about Pentecost, but I have a question."

Dad put down his fork and wiped his mouth with a napkin. "Yes, son? What is your question?"

"Well, that verse, Proverbs 3:9, says 'Honor the Lord with your possessions, and with the firstfruits of all you increase' (Revised Authorized Version). I don't remember what firstfruits are. Does that mean the first fruit that gets ripe in the spring? If so, then in different parts of the world that would mean different fruits, wouldn't it?"

Before Dad could answer, Debbie touched his arm. "Daddy, I have a question, too. You said we have to count 50 days from the weekly Sabbath during the Days of Unleavened Bread and that day is the Feast of Firstfruits, or Pentecost. I marked the calendar in the kitchen. But what does fruit have to do with this Holy Day? Instead of eating unleavened bread do we eat fruit this time?"

Chris put one hand over his mouth so Debbie wouldn't see him smile. When Mother shook her head and frowned, he put his hand down and tried to look serious.

"Well," Dad responded, "you both have asked good questions. But we shouldn't hurry through the answers while we are still eating. So, after dinner I'll give you a puzzle to solve, and we'll talk about Pentecost — and firstfruits — and counting 50. Now, Chris, would you please pass the bowl of fruit for our dessert?"

While Mother and the children cleared the table after the meal, Dad got a sheet of white paper. Then he printed, using a black crayon, large letters in two columns. The letters in the column on the left side, reading from top to bottom, spelled first. The column letters on the right spelled fruits.

When the family was seated again at the table, Dad opened the Bible to Leviticus 23. He read verses 9 and 10, which said that a sheaf of the firstfruits of the spring harvest should be given to the priest.

"When the people were told by God to bring the very first part of their grain to the priest," Dad explained, "that was to remind them to put God first. That is the way we do when we give back to God the first 10th of whatever we receive as income. And, Chris, back to your questions. If you'll remember from last year, the people were to bring the first of their grain, which is considered as fruit of the ground. It doesn't mean oranges, bananas, figs, apples or other fruits of that kind, though we should tithe on them during the year. Understand?"

As Chris nodded, Mother asked, "What is this puzzle you made, dear?"

"Here," Dad answered, holding up the paper, "are two words made from the one word firstfruits — first and fruits. Debbie, you look it over. What is the one extra letter in the right-hand column that isn't in the column on the left?"

Debbie looked over the puzzle, then grinned. "Oh, the word fruits has the letter u. Otherwise, the two words are spelled with the same letters."

"All right. Now, Chris," Dad said, "you draw lines between the letters that are the same in the two columns. See if Debbie is right."

Chris drew the connecting lines. The letter u was left over. "What shall I do with the u?"

"Put a circle around it," Dad replied. "Now think about the letter u. Jesus was the first son to be born to God — right? That makes Jesus God's firstfruit, the first son of God's fatherhood. But God wants others besides Jesus to be His firstfruits — His children. And He's calling some of them now. Whom does God want now, do you think?"

"Oh!" Chris exclaimed. "I know — u — meaning Y-O-U! And that means me, too, doesn't it? And Mommy? And Debbie? And the rest of the people in God's Church? I once heard Mr. King say in a sermon that the Church people are God's firstfruits. Right?"

"Yes, son," Dad agreed. "Now, Debbie, let's look at that kitchen calendar you've marked that shows where you've counted 50 days. On what day of the week are we always to observe Pentecost?"

Debbie skipped to the kitchen and brought in the calendar. She pointed to the day she had colored in with red pencil and said, "The day marked with the last number, 50, is on a Sunday."

"Right, honey," Dad said, "and we have to count those 50 days each time, since Pentecost is on a different date each year, depending on when the weekly Sabbath occurs during the Days of Unleavened Bread. It's important to count right."

"Just think — what if the disciples hadn't counted 50 days correctly in A.D. 31? They wouldn't have been together on that Sunday, June 17, the day God's Church was started. Some of them might have been out fishing, or they might have scattered to various other places and would not have received God's Holy Spirit."

"So remember that when God says to do anything — whether it is counting or anything else — there is an important reason for it, and we must obey."

Turning to Mother, Dad asked, "Now, Beth, have I left out anything we should talk about tonight before these children get too sleepy?"

"Well," Mother answered, "you might explain that the spring harvest in the Holy Land is a small one. That is compared with the early spiritual harvest of souls — the small number of people God is calling now. And then you could explain that the fall harvest is much larger, representing the many, many people who will receive judgment later. Those people can then choose if they want God's truth and become His children — His later fruits."

"I don't need to explain, honey," Dad said, laughing, "because you just did it! Tomorrow we'll discuss Pentecost some more and what it means. But, Debbie, in the proverb you are learning, what does the first part say we should plan for?"

"The first part?" Debbie asked. "It says something about honoring God with my possessions. I don't think God wants me to give Him one of my dolls — or some of the figures on the model railroad in our basement. So I guess you mean we should plan ahead for our Holy Day offering. I'm ahead of you this time, because I've been saving money for my offering since the last Holy Day. Is that what you mean?"

"Yes, it is," Dad replied, hugging her. "And it should be an offering of thanks to God that He has called our family to be part of His firstfruits. However, we must be careful that we don't become like some fruits that don't have proper care, the ones that spoil on the vine or tree — or go sour and become useless. We want to become like ripe and sweet fruit, full of God's Spirit in our lives."

"That reminds me," Dad continued, smiling, "let's end this Bible study tonight by thinking about the fruits that should be growing in us as part of our character. Remember the fruit verses, Galatians 5:22-23?"

Dad and Mother led the children as they repeated together: "But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, self-control."

Debbie laughed and said, "I'm beginning to think that God really likes fruit!"
